Thanks was expressed to Kelly Beerman for the arrangements of the Christmas dinner, and to all who supported it with their attendance. Treasurer Dave Grant said it was a financial success, also.

Since no nominations for new officers were received, the slate of the previous year will continue for the next year.

Aaron Collins reported that noise complaints at the airport have diminished. As before, the preponderance of the complaints come from one source. He mentioned the ongoing negotiations with an FBO for transfer of control of hangars and tie-downs. Alpha Tech is planning to build more hangars. The GA building has been divided so that the north half is run by BAS, and the south half by Command Aviation.

Matt, the tower chief, appealed to pilots to feel free to contact them at the tower concerning any issues that arise.

Peggy Gordon announced two presentations that are scheduled to be given at Boundary Bay airport in the near future.

The speaker for the evening was Charlie Rehberger, talking about acquiring and flying his Yak 52.
